Resilience of global regionalism in times of crises

About the Journal

The Journal of Cross-Regional Dialogues is an open access, peer-reviewed scientific journal of the Center for International Relations Studies (CEFIR) of the University of Liège. It aims to go beyond the euro-centric perspective of regionalism studies and open up to comparative analysis, as well as to inside-out and outside-in approaches to the phenomenon of regionalisation and regional organisations.

Theme: Resilience of global regionalism in times of crises

“Economic crisis”, “debt crisis”, “crisis of multilateralism”, “crisis of politics”, “migration crisis”, “environmental crisis”, “health crisis”, “Ukrainian crisis”... so many problems that feed the feeling that we are constantly living “a crisis” or “in crisis” and that our political institutions, including regional organisations, are in jeopardy.

A crisis is a widely used term to describe the state of a system that is in deep trouble, undergoing a shock or even a rupture and is thus destabilised and unbalanced. However, out of upheaval can come change: the crisis then presents an opportunity to reinvent, redefine, rebuild.

This issue aims to focus on this notion of crisis and to study it in the light of the phenomenon of regionalism. Interested researchers are therefore invited to submit contributions investigating the idea of crisis in terms of its meaning, construction, components, impact and potential for change on regionalism, interregionalism or a particular regional organisation.

Submission of abstracts and articles

Researchers wishing to submit an article for the Journal’s fourth issue are invited to send their abstract to jcrd@uliege.be by mid-August 2022. The length of the abstract should be between 300 and 500 words (including a theoretical and methodological reflexion), excluding references, and should be accompanied by 3 to 5 relevant keywords describing the contribution, as well as a biography of about 150 words.

Researchers whose abstract has been accepted will be contacted at the end of August and will be invited to send their article by the 6th of January 2023. The paper may be written in English or French and may not exceed 8000 words, excluding abstract, references, bibliography and biography. More information on the writing guidelines can be found at this link: <https://popups.uliege.be/2593-9483/index.php?page=instructions>
